Practices and Politics of Representation

The theme we are exploring gravitate around the sonic qualities of the Wasserspeicher, a 19th century water container in Prenzlauer Berg, Berlin and how it deals with the historical, political, technological, and aesthetic aspects of spatial production.

The site-specific artistic works focus on the topics of transformation, temporariness, transience; the inherited memories of past; imaginaries and narratives; the fragility of narratives, and the necessity to either change or preserve them; the obstacles and possibilities offered by the space; how voices get amplified, and how they dissolve.
